this volume gathers together research by ten scholars engaging with multicultural discourse in australia and germany the term polyculturalism rather than multiculturalism is employed deliberately to re open a space in which the workings of discourse on culturally diverse societies both as archive or practice and as intervention can be considered in greater depth the inter cultural perspective and wide range of disciplinary affiliations exhibited by the essays in this volume contribute to this goal whereas the majority of discourse analytical work addresses the diversity of speaking positions as well as the arbitrariness of ascribed meanings within a historical framework delimited by national boundaries and disciplinary boundaries the texts collected here transgress this perspective in working comparatively between australia and germany filmmakers have honed their skills and many have achieved critical and popular success at home and abroad as have actors and other crew american filmmakers and companies have found it cheaper to make films in australia because wages and salaries are lower tax rebates have been attractive and the expertise in most areas of filmmaking is comparable to that of anywhere in the world at the same time australian audiences still enjoy watching australian films making some of them profitable even if this is a small profit when considered in hollywood terms new zealand filmmakers cast and crew have shown that they are equal to the world s best in making films with international themes while other films have shown that the world is interested in new zealand narratives and settings increased support for maori filmmakers and stories has had a significant impact on production levels and on the diversity of stories that now reach the screen it has also helped create more viable career paths for those who continue to be based in their home country this second edition of historical dictionary of Australian and New Zealand cinema contains a chronology an introduction and an extensive bibliography the dictionary section has over 700 cross referenced entries on leading films as well as many directors writers actors and producers it also covers early pioneers film companies genres and government bodies

the twelve essays collected in Pockets of Change locate adaptation within a framework of two overlapping if not simultaneous creative processes on the one hand adaptation is to be understood as an acknowledged transposition of an existing source that is the process of adapting from on the other hand adaptation is also a process of purposeful shifting and evolving of creative practices in response to external factors including but not limited to other creative works in other words the process of adapting to this book explores adaptation then as an active practice of repetition and as a reactive process of development or evolution the essays also extend beyond the production transformation and interpretation of texts to interrogate the values and practices at work in cultural transition and transformation during periods of social and historical change collectively the papers theorize adaptation by taking on three tasks first to examine the conditions under which the two processes of adaptation operate second to give an account of the space and moment in which the processes unfold the pockets of the title and finally to examine what emerges from pockets of adaptation while adapting from and adapting to are both processes that appear to preclude innovation in the way that they acknowledge and depend on external sources pockets of change demonstrates that adaptation is productive it not only references prior texts attitudes practices and media but it also invites us to re visit the past and to re think the present in new ways potentially giving narrative space to muted or occluded voices this book therefore brings together an innovative and varied range of approaches to interpretations and uses of adaptation challenging the assumption that an adaptation is simply either a re make or the act of turning one medium into another adaptation then names not only the means by which texts are transformed but also the space in which that transformation takes place this anthology highlights the processes of adaptation and transition rather than simply focusing on the relationship between beginning and end products in identifying these pockets of change this anthology both claims and opens up new spaces in this critical field and mode of textual analysis aimed at academic professional and general readers bush city cyberspace provides a snapshot of the state of australian children s and adolescent literature in the early twenty first century and an insight into its history in doing so it promotes a sense of where australian literature for young people may be going and captures a literary and critical mood with which readers in australia and beyond will identify the title of the work is intended to capture the fact that the field has changed dramatically in the century and a half that australian children s literature has existed from the bush myths and heroism that inform the past and the present through the recognition that the vast majority of authors and readers live in cities to the third wave of cyberliterature that incorporates multimedia hypertext weblinks and e books none of which lessens the enduring enthusiasm of practitioners and readers for books bush city cyberspace is not meant to be an encyclopedic volume rather well known recent and or award winning works have been emphasised with the addition of others where these help to illuminate particular points the book is similar in coverage and approach to australian children s literature an exploration of genre and theme written by the same three authors and published by the centre for information studies in 1995 in the intervening period much has changed in the field notable examples including the blurring of the dividing line between quality and popular literature the blending of genres the rise of a truly indigenous literature the demise to a significant extent of outbackery in fiction the acceptance of multiculturalism as the norm and the advent of the literature of cyberspace with new methods and the sheer speed of communication between writer and reader all these trends and others are reflected in this work
