the purpose of this book is to examine the variety the mechanisms and the poetological intention of the effect of surprise in aristophanic comedy addressing the phenomenon not as a self evident or unselfconscious element of comedy as a genre but as an elaborate system which characterises the style of the specific dramatist more precisely the book analyses aristophanes most prominent verbal thematic and theatrical modes of surprise from a typological perspective and interprets them as comprising the key area in which the playwright claims and demonstrates his artistic superiority over rival genres and individual poets in line with this purpose two parallel aims of the book are to provide an original commentary on the passages under examination and to promote the study of modern performances a practice which has so far been either restricted to classical reception or only theoretically acknowledged if at all by mainstream philological scholarship this is a timely book on a topic of wide current interest across a range of interlocking disciplines emotion studies semiotics narratology information theory and most pertinently for this book humour research
